REPORT

Gentlemen of the Board of Public Education:

The system of education in the First School District of Pennsylvania, is, on all sides, confessed to be a good one. More than this,—it is conceded that the administration of it is efficient. Doubtlessly there remains much to be accomplished, but the results achieved are satisfactory in themselves and compare favorably with those attained in other cities. Cheapness has ever been our boast, but be it remembered that it is also our shame. It is our boast because it is really surprising that so good an article is obtainable for so paltry a price; for though the aggregate of the school appropriation is large, when we consider that ninety thousand children are daily taught, and for five and six hours every day, the sum seems insignificant. How much larger would it be if every parent were obliged to pay the full market value of such instruction,—that market value being permitted to adjust itself by the only equitable law of supply and demand.

The position of the teacher is an honorable, dignified and laborious one, and is so recognized in every intelligent community,—being so, it is entitled to full compensation. The same culture, intelligence and industry in this profession should command as ample remuneration as they receive in other professions.

The low wages manifestly lie at the root of this depreciation; for in this country and this age, money almost universally carries with it a certain conventional respectability that has much to do with position and weight in the social scale. Now why is this permitted? If there ever was a country in which the teacher should be exalted and honored, it is this. Our theory of government pre-supposes a virtue and intelligence in the people which, alas! are often wanting, and to whom are we to look for their diffusion, if not to him who is commissioned by nature and study for the high office of instructor? Moreover, not only are we guilty of injustice in thus depreciating an office upon which we are dependent for so much, but that depreciation must, sooner or later, drag the office and those that hold it down to the level of the low esteem in which they are held. Already the symptoms of deterioration are evident. Already the number of proper candidates diminishes, and the character and requirements of those who come forward steadily decline. As the skilled teachers of the present generation disappear, the schools must languish for the want of suitable successors, and the shallow boast of cheapness will be no longer available from any point of view, for we shall, in that event, soon find that the article purchased will be dear at any price.

A word now as to the effects of this system of education which we maintain in our district. In this connection it is not proposed to refer to the examples of high scholarship and exemplary conduct which culminate in the thoughtful and finished men of letters and of science. These cases sufficiently recommend themselves. But a word must be spoken as to the negative or preventative influence of our great chainwork of schools.

Here let me insist upon the attention of the tax-payer who may, perhaps, be inclined to complain of the burden and unable to see a compensating benefit. What, let me ask him, would be the condition of our community to-day if it had not been for the silent and gradual, but none the less certain work, which the schools, with their army of patient, industrious and conscientious teachers, have been persistently doing? As it is, and in spite of all our efforts, there is a large element of vagabondism in our cities. Without the influences of our schools, which for so many years have been unceasingly in operation, that element would have attained proportions beyond the power of our government to control, and our social system would, before now, have proved unequal to the strain to which it would have been subjected.

Education is the only arm by which the law can reach this dangerous and restless element. Punitive measures would utterly fail to cope with so gigantic and growing an evil. Property would be insecure, and would, of course, be depreciated in value, so that the capitalist, who now groans under the burden of taxation, would find the reduction on the value of his property resulting from such insecurity, far greater than the loss which he is at present compelled to sustain. But above and beyond the mere money question, the sweetness, harmony and beauty of life, are multiplied a thousand fold by the diffusion of knowledge and the increase of intelligence. Just in proportion as man is educated is the spiritual enabled to dominate the animal element within him, and all must admit that even with our many boasted advances, we have yet much to learn and much to do before we can raise our civilization to the highest attainable level. I submit these brief reflections before entering upon the statistics of my report, in the hope that they may increase the energy of those who are already engaged in the good work of sustaining and improving our schools, and to arouse the attention of others who are either indifferent or array themselves in opposition to it.

There are several matters which cannot sufficiently appear in the appended tables, and upon the success of which I am proud to be able to congratulate the Board.

The CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL is an institution whose high standing and uninterrupted improvement give it the strongest claim to our consideration and support, and constitute it a crowning and essential feature of our school system. Its course of instruction is more practical than ever, and its professors are distinguished by their ability and the fidelity with which they discharge the high trust devolved upon them. The attendance still continues at its highest point, and there are many indications that the school is outgrowing the accommodations provided for it. I commend it as a school of which we all should feel proud, and which more than repays the outlay required for its maintenance.

The NORMAL SCHOOL is also an indispenable institution whose success justifies all that has been done for it. The demand for female teachers is supplied chiefly by the school, and there the only fitting preparation is given for the duties which such teachers are expected to perform. The report of the Committee on Qualifications of Teachers sufficiently attests this fact. The advanced education of women is, on general grounds, also, demanded more urgently than ever, by the changing and growing wants of the age.

The other grades, the GRAMMAR, SECONDARY, and PRIMARY SCHOOLS, all flourish, and it is with rejoicing that we are able to state that as the population of the city grows their number is being steadily increased.

The new school buildings recently constructed are an especial matter for satisfaction and pride. They are a vast improvement upon those before erected, and are, it is submitted, unsurpassed, if not unequalled, in any city of our land.

The NIGHT SCHOOLS have been better attended than heretofore. A separate report is appended which renders further reference here unnecessary.

The several statements following are herewith respectively submitted and also appended, namely:

STATEMENT A.—Showing the number of pupils in attendance

5. List of Directors, in the order of their wards or school sections, with the location of the schools in each, the teachers employed, salaries paid, pupils in attendance, &c.

6. By-laws for the government of the Board of Public Education.

Before closing I desire to acknowledge the receipt of a very valuable and interesting document from John Alexander, Esq., of our City, on the subject of compulsory education in France.

It is assuredly a gratification to know that another year finds the cause of education, not only sustained, but advanced, and I feel that I cannot do less than recommend to the esteem and gratitude of the community, the teachers, and also the members of this Board, who, by their assiduous labors in committee, have made the year so fruitful in results.

M. HALL STANTON,
President.

OF

GEORGE INMAN RICHÉ, A. M.,

PRINCIPAL OF THE

Messrs. DANIEL STEINMETZ, THOMAS R. DAVIS, ANDREW NEBINGER, M.D., JAMES FREEBORN, and M. R. HARRIS, Committee on Central High School:

In October, Prof. Edwin J. Houston obtained leave of absence for a year, and sailed for Europe, where he, at present, remains pursuing his scientific studies and researches, and recruiting his health. Prof. William H. Wahl, the Secretary of the Franklin Institute, was elected to act as substitute, and at once entered upon the duties of the chair, which he discharges with fidelity and industry.

The Professors have continued to work in their respective departments with their accustomed energy and conscientiousness. They have ably seconded every effort for the advancement of the school, and have been rewarded by results commensurate with their labors. The year has been marked by such harmony and co operation that, at its close, unaffected expressions of general and hearty congratulation were exchanged upon the prosperous condition of the institution.

The teaching is, to a large extent, oral, and is made as independent as possible of the text books in use. Constant study is required on the part of the Professors to keep pace with the latest researches in their respective branches, and their powers are taxed by the necessity of constant and copious explanations. The discipline of the school also imposes unceasing labor. The parents are kept fully informed of the progress of their sons, both in their studies and their conduct. The students respond to the discipline in a manner creditable to themselves and gratifying to the Faculty; and every term there appears to be a diminishing need for punishment, and an improving standard of conduct. Acknowledgments are due to the Committee on the School and the Board of Public Education for the unfailing support which they have given to the institution and to all measures for increasing its efficiency, and the liberal spirit evinced by City Councils in the appropriations must always be thankfully remembered.

The average attendance for the year is 580.16, and is in excess even of that reported for 1871. It is not to be expected, nor, indeed, is it desirable, that so unexampled an attendance should be maintained, but it must be accepted as an unmistakable indication of the high standing of the school in the estimation of the community.

The appropriations for the purchase of apparatus, models, &c., have been expended with care, and the following valuable additions have been made to the collection already possessed by the departments named:

DEPARTMENT OF ASTRONOMY.

Chronograph, with Bond's Spring Governor, made by William J. Young & Sons, of this city; a sextant made by the same firm; a solar clock of superior workmanship.

DEPARTMENT OF DRAWING.

Seven hundred and fifty new cards; one set of Harding's Drawing blocks; one set of blocks, comprising geometric solids.

DEPARTMENTS OF PHYSICS AND CHEMISTRY.

Also, one hundred specimens of birds, mounted.

This increased supply of apparatus, necessitated additional provision for its storage and safe keeping. Two new cases have, therefore, been placed in class-room No. 3, in addition to the large one begun in 1871, and completed early in 1872.

The apparatus is kept continually in use for purposes of illustration, both in the High School and in the Night School for Artisans, and incalculable benefits have, by means of it, been conferred on the community, through the advanced instruction which is thus given both to the rising generation of young men and to that large class of workmen in our manufacturing shops, the increase of whose skill is imperatively demanded. The apparatus was thought worthy of a special exhibition to parents and others interested in the school who are unable to visit it during its regular sessions, and, accordingly, on the evening of the 24th of September, 1872, the departments of physics, chemistry, anatomy and physiology, drawing, the lecture room, the observatory, and the laboratory, were thrown open to the public, and the professors of the school were in attendance to furnish the desired explanations. The building was thronged and all present appeared to be delighted. Many went away from the school with a new sense of the valuable facilities which it affords to both young and old for study, especially in those practical directions which the genius of our age and of our country seems to indicate, as of special and growing importance.

In April, an exhibition of selected declamations by the students, accompanied by music, was given in the Lecture Room. A crowded audience was in attendance and the speakers acquitted themselves with credit. In December, it was thought well to give another entertainment of the same character, instead of waiting until April, 1873, and the affair gave even more pleasure and satisfaction, if possible, than the previous one. The talent displayed in some instances, was rare, and in all was highly creditable.

It is to be hoped that the prosperity and usefulness of the school may continue uninterrupted for years to come. The highest and best interests of the community are bound up in its success. Every year strengthens its claim upon the citizen for a generous support, and every year will, it is trusted, manifest more clearly the influences for good which radiate from it in all directions.

Respectfully,

G. I. RICHÉ,
Principal.

CENTRAL HIGH SCHOOL,

At the examinations held by direction of the Committee on Qualification of Teachers, two hundred and twenty-four received certificates, as follows: in April, one hundred and three, and in October, one hundred and twenty-one.

The wants of the school still imperatively demand a suitable School of Practice, which can never be supplied until more extensive accommodations are provided.

The philosophical and chemical apparatus has been considerably increased this year by the expenditure of an appropriation of five hundred dollars, in purchasing the following articles.

One set of mechanical powers; inertia apparatus; mechanical paradox; gyroscope; working model of forcing pump; Archimedes screw; Wirtemburg syphon; Hiero's fountain; pulse glass; pyrometer; conductometer; fire syringe; flameless lamp; cryophorus; Berzelius' blow-pipe; orrery; Holt's electrical machine; electrical battery (six gallon jars); lightning jars; four Leyden jars (quart); universal discharger; phosphorus apparatus; electrical sportsman; six bell glass receivers (assorted); water hammer; Magdeburg hemispheres; mercury shower; bell in vacuo; cryophorus in vacuo; fountain in vacuo; telegraph (working model); voltaic pistol; hydrogen generator; decomposing water apparatus; apparatus for making sulphuretted hydrogen; apparatus for generating gases; laboratory balance; one dozen beaker glasses (assorted); balloons; carbonic acid apparatus; crucible; copper flask for oxygen; galvanic battery; one dozen retorts (assorted); hydrometer; rubber hose; mortar and pestle; oil for apparatus; tantalus cup; freezing apparatus; test tube holder; two dozen test tubes.

In addition to the above, a considerable sum was expended for chemicals to be used in experiments.

Notwithstanding the crowded condition of the school, which compels the pupils to suffer many inconveniences not felt in any of the lower schools, and to endure many privations, and sometimes much suffering, in consequence of the defective heating and ventilating arrangements, the interest, application, and attendance are almost unexampled, and the desire for admission is greatly augmented.

The average attendance during the year was five hundred and twenty, from an average roll of five hundred and thirty-one, or nearly ninety-eight per cent., including those who were absent on account of sickness, and excluding the sick the unprecedented average of ninety-nine and eighty-eight hundredths per cent.

The same untiring industry and energy has characterized the efforts of the teachers in the execution of their arduous and responsible duties.

During the year, Miss Sarah A. Walker resigned her position as teacher of ancient history and etymology. Miss Walker had been connected with the school for a number of years, and was an able and earnest teacher. Her conscientious and fearless discharge of duty won the esteem and confidence of all connected with the school, and she bears with her, in retirement, the kindest regard and best wishes of teachers and pupils. Miss Elizabeth A. Brown was appointed her successor. Miss Brown ranks high among the distinguished graduates of the school, and her efforts thus far, indicate the choice to have been a wise one.

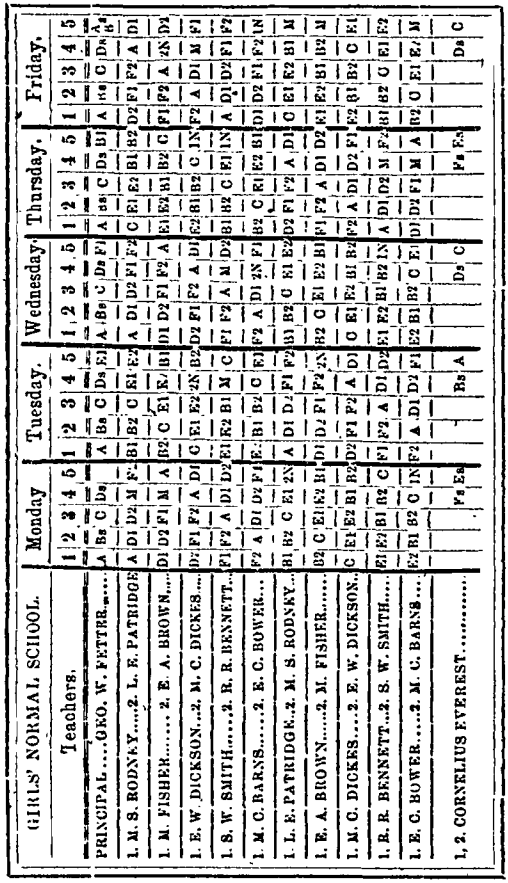
Towards the close of the year, Miss Lydia F. Hamor, long a teacher of high standing in the lower schools, and for several years successful in this school, as teacher of drawing and penmanship, resigned to accept a less laborious and more lucrative position in a private school. Her loss was deeply felt, as she was both experienced and industrious, always at her post when her health would permit, and determined and resolute in the discharge of her duty. It is hoped that she may find her new sphere congenial, and that her health may be preserved, through many years of continued usefulness and happiness. Miss Mary E. Fisher was appointed to fill the vacancy. Miss Fisher brings to her post remarkable natural ability for the subjects taught in this department, and the indications are, that her industry and vigilance will crown her efforts with success, and render her appointment a valuable acquisition to the school.

The following is the order of exercises for every two consecutive weeks.



During the year City Councils appropriated a iberal sum, and set apart the Arsenal lot on Race Street, below Broad, for the purpose of erecting thereon a new Normal School Building. The Board of Education not deeming this a suitable location, nor of sufficient size to meet the demands of the school, recently asked for a change of location. The matter is now under consideration, and it is hoped that it will receive such speedy attention, as the exigency of the case demands, since no public school interest at present, needs more special notice.

It is hoped this brief report will enable you to form correct conclusions in reference to the condition and wants of the school, and in conclusion, permit me, gentlemen, to express my gratitude for your kind aid and encouragement, in the performance of the responsible duties devolving on me.

Very respectfully,
GEORGE W. FETTER,
Principal.

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE

ON

PUBLIC EVENING SCHOOLS.

To the President and Members of the Board of Public Education.

Your Committee, charged with the location and supervision of the Public Evening Schools, report their final closing after a term of some twenty weeks,—perhaps, the most successful since the institution of these schools by this Board in 1867.

No better indication could be given of the good results produced, than the large numbers admitted into these schools, and the constancy and earnestness with which, when admitted, the scholars attended and sought to improve.

The following will be of interest to the Board, and indeed to every one interested in the cause of public education and public morality; the Committee regard it as a beautiful tribute to both.

The total number of scholars registered and instructed in the Public Night Schools during the term just closed, was eight thousand five hundred and eighty-seven.

The several ages are also given as a matter of interest.

Number of Scholars from 17 to 21 years of age, -	5,685
" " " 21 to 25 " " -	1,523
" " " 25 to 30 " " -	699
" " " 30 to 40 " " -	515
" " over 40 years of age, - -	165
Total registered and instructed, . . .	8,587

These scholars were distributed among twenty-nine (29) schools, the location of which, the attendance upon each, the teachers and janitors employed, the salaries paid, &c., will be found appended to the report, now respectfully submitted to this Board of Public Education.

In the other schools were taught the Alphabet, Spelling, Reading, Penmanship, Arithmetic, History of the United States by Conversations and Reading Lessons; Instructions in Book-keeping were also given in the upper class.

Perhaps the most interesting and valuable features of the instruction afforded by these Public Evening Schools, were the Lectures delivered by Professor Edward W. Vogdes of the High School. The topics embraced were, "The Causes of Disease," "The Anatomy of the Lungs," "The Products of Respiration," "The Natural and Artificial Production of Carbonic Acid Gas," "The Nature and Philosophy of Ventilation," "Compression of the Chest," "The Circulation of the Blood," "The Organs of Digestion," "Food and the Teeth," "The Chemistry of Digestion;" "Violation of the Hygienic Laws Connected with Digestion," "The Anatomy of the Ear," "The Anatomy of the Muscles," "Hygienic Laws Governing the Mind," &c., &c., &c. These lectures were illustrated by means of chemical apparatus, drawings, and models.

The Committee think it due to Prof. Vogdes to say that his lectures, so free from technical terms, so full of practical information, and delivered in so clear and pleasant a manner, were listened to by the scholars with almost marvelous interest.

To the Board of Public Education of the City of Philadelphia:

GENTLEMEN:—We, the undersigned, scholars of the German English Night School, at Northern Liberties, beg leave to express our most heartfelt and sincere thanks for your kindness and generosity that prompted you to open this institution, where all of us were instructed in the English language, the knowledge of which is so highly important for every one living in this country.

It is but a short time since most of us have come to this country, where we intend to remain for our lifetime, and we are happy to say that you have done a good and noble work by giving us an opportunity to learn the language of this country of our choice.

Indeed, the more care we bestowed in the study of the English language, the more we learned to appreciate its high value. It proves not only a means of getting brightly along in business life, but it is also an inexhaustible source of intellectual pleasure and delight, and for all these advantages arising from the knowledge of the English language we are indebted to you, the promoters of intelligence and science.

Therefore, most respected gentlemen, we again thank you for having opened this Night School, where we spent so many happy evenings in the most useful manner, and would cheerfully and thankfully make good use of such an opportunity should it be offered again next winter.

Before closing, we cannot but speak with the highest esteem of the teachers you have given us. In appointing Professors J. B. Hertzog, F. John, and G. Weisel, we congratulate you upon your choice. They are fully capable of teaching the English language, and have spared no pains in assisting and aiding us in our studies.

We are, gentlemen,

Your most obedient servants,

REPORT

OF THE

Architect and Superintendent of Public School Buildings,

FOR THE YEAR 1872.

To the Board of Public Education.

GENTLEMEN:—The following condensed report of operations under the direction of your Architect and Superintendent for the year 1872, is respectfully submitted.

In the appropriations for "special items" of repairs for 1872, Councils were governed in great measure by a spirit of strict economy; consequently the sum placed at the disposal of the Board of Education for the purpose of keeping in good condition the numerous school houses proved to be very insufficient. This has in many cases been attended with serious results, for there is probably no kind of property that, if neglected, will "run down" quicker. Constant watchfulness and immediate repair of the smallest damage will prove to be true economy. In many cases very necessary repairs had to remain unattended to from want of means to pay for them, and in others, the repairs were made with the understanding that the parties doing the work should wait for the payment of their bills until the appropriation was made for 1873. This, though not strictly proper, seemed to be the best that could be done under the circumstances.

At the suggestion of the Committee on Property, an item was inserted in the estimates for 1873, for "incidental and extraordinary expenses." A judicious expenditure of this appropriation will to some extent correct the evil, while the liberal appropriation for "general repairs" will probably be sufficient for ordinary purposes.

During the year just closed seven new school houses have been finished and occupied.

First Section. One at the corner of Tenth and Snyder Streets; an eight division brown stone building, which was commenced August 21, 1871, and finished August 10, 1872, at a cost of $16,330.

Fourteenth Section. Monroe School House on Wood Street, east of Twelfth; a fifteen division brown stone building with directors' room, teachers' room, &c.: commenced March 28, 1871, and finished June 1, 1872, at a cost of $25,500.

Fourteenth Section. William D. Kelley School House on Wood Street, west of Eleventh; an addition to the old building, of five divisions, and extension with brown stone front, &c.: commenced August 21, 1871, and finished June 17, 1872, at a cost of $8,925.

Fifteenth Section. Livingston School House at the corner of Twenty-third and Shamokin Street; a fifteen division brown stone building; commenced April 24, 1871, and finished June 15, 1872; cost $28,700.

Twenty-second Section. Allen's Lane; a twelve division gray stone building; commenced May 11, 1871, and finished July 15, 1872, cost $19,940.

Twenty-fourth Section. At the corner of Thirty-eighth and Story Streets; a twelve division brick building with brown stone dressings; commenced November 14, 1870; owing to the delay caused by the failure of the original contractor, &c., the building was not finished until November 15, 1872, two years after its commencement; cost $19,745.

Twenty-seventh Section. At the corner of Thirty-eighth and Spruce Street, an eighteen division brown stone building; commenced July 1, 1871, and finished August 10, 1872, at a cost of $35,837.

Besides the above new buildings, several old ones were altered and extended so as to provide additional class-rooms, teachers' rooms, &c.

The aggregate capacity of these buildings is ninety class rooms or divisions, and accommodations for four thousand children, allowing forty-five to a division.

In response to the earnest appeals of your Board, Councils were induced before the close of the year to authorize a loan of one million dollars, to be expended in the purchase of lots and the erection thereon of additional school buildings.

Plans have been prepared for a number, to be located in sections where most needed, several of which have been contracted for, as follows:

Seventh Section. At the corner of Nineteenth and Addison Streets—an extension of the old building; the contract was awarded to Mr. J. McIlvaine, for $3,750; work to be commenced in the spring.

Nineteenth Section. On Adams, near Amber Street, a three storied brown stone building of fifteen divisions; the contract was entered into with Charles C. Carman for $27,470, and work commenced October 22. The cold weather caused a suspension of operations when the cellar walls were nearly ready for the first floor of joists.

Nineteenth Section. At the corner of Cumberland and Hancock Streets, a three storied brown stone building of fifteen divisions; contract made with J. McCormick for $28,850.

Twentieth Section. At the corner of Eighth and Thompson Streets, a three storied brown stone building of fifteen divisions; contract was awarded to Charles C. Carman for $27,840.

Twenty-third Section. On Frankford Avenue near Foulkrod Street, a three storied brown stone building of eighteen divisions; contract awarded to J. McCormick for $27,500.

Twenty fourth Section. On Thirty-eighth Street near Warren, a three storied brown stone building of eighteen divisions; contract awarded to Thomas McCarty for $32,200.

Plans have been ordered for a number of other sections, some of which have been finished and proposals authorized; others are being prepared by the Architect and will be ready before spring opens.

In the preparation of the plans care has been taken to provide for directors' rooms (where desired), teachers' rooms, with interior water-closets, washstands, &c.

NORMAL SCHOOL.

No progress has been made toward providing a new building for this long neglected department. It is hoped that the attention of Councils will be given to the matter early in the coming year.

DAMAGE BY FIRE.

Eighth Section. Hollingsworth School House. On Saturday, March 10, at 1½ P. M., this building caught fire from some undiscovered cause, and before the fire could be stayed, was injured to an extent of about $4,000.

The repairs were promptly made by the Fire Association, with their usual liberal construction in favor of the insured. If they had been inclined to contest the claim, it was supposed that they had apparent cause; in view of all the circumstances, a vote of thanks was tendered to the Association by the Committee on Property of your Board.

On December 10, the Hancock School House on Coates Street, above Twelfth, was endangered by the partial ignition of a lintel across a door-way in the cellar of the old building, said lintel, when the alteration was made, having been run too near the flue of the furnace; before any progress had been made by the fire, it was extinguished by the janitor, who was fortunately on the premises; the necessary correction has been made.

HEATING AND VENTILATION.

On this subject, your superintendent has nothing new to say, and can only refer to his last report, in which the subject was treated at length. If it could be made compulsory on the janitors to give exclusive attention to the heating of the school houses in winter, so that the fires could be kept brightly burning, by frequently opening the burning mass of coal during both sessions of the schools, a very large per centage of additional heat would be obtained. Instead of this, however, in very many cases the fires are made in the morning so late that the session is almost over before the class-room becomes comfortably heated, about which time another mass of new coal is thrown on the fire, in quantity sufficient to deaden the fire for hours after. Of course this is not the universal or only cause for the discomfort complained of, but it is the most prevalent one. The careful selection of janitors and their supervision by intelligent members of the Sectional Boards would go far toward remedying the evil.

In many cases the full benefit of the system of ventilation is not realized owing to misapprehension on the part of the teachers themselves. In recent visits to schools from which complaints had been received, your superintendent found the air quite foul (in one first class grammar school especially), and on examination found the ventilating registers tightly closed. On asking an explanation from the principal, he was informed that the cold air came in through the registers and made the room cold. When the register was opened and it was demonstrated by holding a handkerchief in front of the opening that there was a strong draft out of the room, instead of into it, and that, consequently it could not be the means of introducing cold air into the room, but was the steady outlet for the foul air that collects in the lower part of the largest, as well as the smallest rooms, surprise was expressed and conviction only secured by visiting other class-rooms in the building, and going through the same process. The system of ventilation in connection with heating, was fully explained in my last report, and I can only refer teachers and all concerned to that.

All of which is submitted for the consideration of the Board: Your superintendent and architect also desires here to acknowledge the continued evidence of the confidence reposed in him, and again invites the criticism as well as the co-operation of the members.

LEWIS H. ESLER,
Architect and Superintendent.

INSTRUCTION TO TEACHERS.

SPELLING.

No system of classification has been yet invented to render, by inflexible rules, the acquirement of a knowledge of spelling possible. Such knowledge can be obtained only by an exercise of the memory, and by habits of attention and observation, begun in early life, and carefully persisted in.

Exercises in this branch of study should be both oral and written, and daily practised.

In conducting oral exercises, a pupil should pronounce the word distinctly before spelling by its syllables; he should have but a single trial, and if he fails, he should always be required to spell it correctly immediately after its correction, or at the close of the recitation; or he may be required to write it several times, that he may become familiar with its form, for, truly, on this subject it is only "line upon line, and precept upon precept," that can accomplish anything.

In conducting written exercises, the pupil should, when required, divide the word into its proper syllables. These exercises should be examined either by the teacher herself, or under her personal supervision; and, in all cases, the pupil should be required to correct his errors.

Teachers should pronounce the word but once in oral exercises, and not more than twice in written exercises, and never in an unnatural or unusual tone, or so as to indicate the orthography. The exercises may be varied by requiring the entire word to be spelled, or to be spelled by syllables, or by letter. Especial care should be taken to secure distinct articulation and correct pronunciation; the utterance of each sound should be clear, sharp, and full. Concert spelling, if practised at all, should be stopped the instant that it becomes measured or sing-song.

A teacher should never assign a lesson without first pronouncing each word to be spelled, and having the pupils spell it in syllables, and afterwards pronounce it at sight. Attention should be called to difficult and unusual spelling whenever it may occur, and no errors of orthography should pass unnoticed.

READING.

To read with feeling, intelligence, and acceptance, the reader must understand what the writer means—must enter into the spirit of the composition, and have his voice entirely under his control.

It is not in the power of every one to become, in that respect, a good reader; but as that which is worth doing at all is worth doing well, and as reading is one of the established branches of education, it is proper to give it all the attention which will lead to the utmost acquirement of skill of which the pupil may be capable.

In order to secure the control and cultivation of the voice, attention should be given in the lower divisions to what is technically termed the explosion of elementary sounds. This exercise, care being taken not to strain the voice, will be followed by other good results than those under consideration; will strengthen the lungs and afford relaxation, so as to better enable the pupil to renew attention to the studies which shall succeed. The pupil should stand during the exercise, and the atmosphere of the room should be changed. Attention in the higher divisions should, in addition, be paid to quality, force, time, and pitch of the voice.

The repetition of a badly read sentence does no good unless the faults be clearly marked out, and the correct reading given by the teacher, or by a pupil who has mastered the difficulty. Some concert reading may be beneficial, provided the teacher is careful to stop it instantly if it falls into sing-song or measured reading, or when it tends to the development of unpleasant or unnatural tones. Short sentences are much better than long ones for this purpose, as they do not tempt to measured reading.

Mental discipline should be co-ordinate with vocal discipline. No dull, listless, unthinking pupil can ever become a good reader. The teacher must awaken thought; a lesson which the pupil can understand should be selected; something a little in advance of what he has already learned, but yet within the range of his comprehension. The lesson should be talked about, and the ideas of the pupils drawn out and corrected, if erroneous. His knowledge of the subject may be tested by asking a question, by requiring him to substitute one or more words that shall change the form, but not the meaning, of the passage; or by asking some question requiring that portion as an answer.

A very common fault is that of stumbling, hesitating, and repeating; to cure which the teacher should make the most earnest and determined efforts. It may arise from carelessness, from the use of books in advance of the pupil's ability, or from his failing to grasp the idea in time to give it clear utterance; or it may result from being permitted to indulge in a similar habit in other recitations. A poor reader cannot study or recite well.

While a class are reading, the undivided attention of the teacher, as well as of the pupils, should be given to the exercise.

Pupils should be encouraged to criticise each other fairly and justly. During the progress of the reading no interruption should be permitted; but at its close, those that have noticed an error should have an opportunity to correct it; and each should be required to explain and illustrate his own criticism.

Declamation need not be insisted upon until pupils in this branch are somewhat advanced.

PENMANSHIP.

One system should be taught throughout the Primary, the Secondary, and the Grammar Schools, so that as the pupils pass from one grade to another, they will not be obliged to unlearn what they have already acquired in regard to the distinctive features of that system. Thus the pupils will the more readily perfect and carry out the principles they have already partially become acquainted with, such as the movements of the hand and arm; analysis and rules for the formation of the letters, the position of sitting, the manner of holding the pen, the correct slope and shading of the letters, uniformity in spacing, neatness, and elegance of style, legibility, ease, and rapidity of writing.

The constant use of the blackboard or charts in contrasting the proper forms of the letters with erroneous forms made by the pupil, is indispensable in teaching writing.

The copy written upon the board by the teacher must always conform to the system used. The pupil must not be allowed to write rapidly before he is able to write a legible hand.

The great aim of the teacher must be to impart a plain, neat handwriting, devoid of flourish or ornament, for no other style is suitable for business purposes.

Whenever practicable, the teaching should be by the same teacher in all the grades of a school.

When it is thought advisable not to give the child a pen, a long slate pencil, or a penholder with a slate pencil inserted should be used, and if a primary slate with the elementary forms on the margin could be adopted, it would serve a good purpose in amusing and instructing the pupil in drawing and writing.

The time spent should not exceed five minutes to a lesson, and two or three lessons a day would be ample to form good habits at the commencement.

DRAWING.

In introducing the subject of Drawing into our schools, one serious difficulty presents itself, which however, it is thought, may be easily overcome by a little perseverance on the part of the teachers.

The difficulty consists in the want of the necessary training on the part of the pupils of the higher divisions of the schools to fit them for entering at once upon the task laid down for them in the Revised Course of Studies herewith presented. It is, therefore, necessary that the teachers of these be directed to give the necessary preliminary instructions until pupils, who are regularly trained, be promoted to these divisions from the lower divisions.

It is proposed that in the lower divisions the form and size of the simple plane figures bounded by three and four lines, and the comparative size of the same shall be illustrated on the blackboard.

Also, the length of lines, or of any objects in sight, and the comparative length shall be observed by the pupils, and the width and the comparative width of the plane figures mentioned above, and of any objects in sight.

Direction is also to be explained; as from one point to another on the board, and the direction from one object to another, both in and out of the school-room, as to the right, to the left, upward, downward, &c. Distance and comparative distance are to be explained in like manner.

All the instruction in this division should have special reference to the correct discipline of the eye of the pupil, for on this depends almost entirely the future progress of the pupil in this art. The faults in enlarging or diminishing a subject in copying it should be corrected as early as possible and the pupils taught to measure length and distance by the eye. Some pupils will uniformly produce a copy of a subject of much smaller size than the original; others again will just as perseveringly produce one of much larger size. The thorough correction of these faults will require much patience and perseverance on the part of the teacher.

All lessons in this division should be abundantly illustrated by drawings on the board, or the objects themselves, and the teacher should be supplied with a complete set of apparatus for the purpose.

It is also of primary importance that the instructions to teachers given in the "Teacher's Guide," which accompanies the series of Drawing Cards and Books, be rigidly adhered to in the various divisions, that the subject be taught by "the system," and that the pupil be led by induction from that what is known to that which is unknown, so that each step of progress may prepare him for the next.

DICTATION.

Apart from the importance of this exercise in imparting a knowledge of spelling and impressing the forms of words upon the mind, it teaches in an easy manner the use of the punctuation and other marks.

In the primary and the secondary grades it is expected only that pupils shall be able to recognize and name the marks assigned to their divisions, and to make and place them under the direction of the teacher.

When the pupils advance beyond the primary grades general and simple directions may be given for using capitals, and the marks of which they have occasion to make most frequent use; this does not require or presuppose a knowledge of grammar, as it can be taught without. The main object should be to impart such instruction as may be made at once available if the pupils should be obliged to leave school before reaching the grammar department.

In the higher divisions it is not deemed necessary or advisable to teach formal, set rules for the use of the punctuation marks, especially of the comma, the semi-colon, and the colon, as this would require more time than can be profitably devoted, and more knowledge and intelligence than can be reasonably expected in pupils of those grades; hence, all technicalities should be avoided, as well as all disputed or doubtful points.

COMPOSITION.

If properly taught, there is, perhaps, no exercise that is of more practical advantage than that of composition. The pupil should be required to rewrite reading or other lessons, using his own phraseology; and, in the higher grades, to transpose poetry into prose.

In letter-writing, attention should be given to the heading, the address, the manner of closing, the direction, etc. In assigning lessons for composition, care should be taken to give none except upon subjects about which the pupil has read, or upon which instruction has been given orally; he should be required to express in his own words what he knows, and be encouraged to write his thoughts freely.

All mistakes in grammar or orthography should be marked if the errors are numerous the pupil should be required to re-write the exercise.

ARITHMETIC.

Mental Arithmetic.—The best way to teach Arithmetic, is to devote about one-third of the time to Mental Arithmetic—a branch of study hitherto too much neglected in the Public Schools of this District. The lessons should, of course, be prepared by the class before recitation, so that the drill may be systematic, not hap-hazard. Pupils so taught will pass even a purely written examination in a manner far more creditable to themselves and their instructors, than if they had spent the whole time at Written Arithmetic. In the Primary Schools, and in the case of pupils in the higher grades who have not before taken up this subject, the exercises should be restricted to operations with small numbers, and to examples of a character not too complicated. Accuracy in analysis, cultivation of memory, and facility in computation, are the things to be aimed at in this study. In general, the mind of the pupil must be trained to act without the aid of paper, slate, or pencil; but when the questions are long and contain several conditions, the pupils should be supplied with text books, and should be permitted to use them during recitation; otherwise, the mind may be too severely taxed in its efforts to retain and solve the question at the same time. After a lesson has been recited, the teacher should improvise questions containing the same principles; but the pupils should not be permitted to use the formulæ previously taught, but should be required to give other methods, and should be encouraged and rewarded for any original solution, especially if it be concise and logical. Concert exercises in arithmetic should be avoided; but sometimes, in order to secure attention and accuracy, a solution may be given by several members of a class, each pupil taking the solution exactly where it was left by his predecessor, without omitting or repeating a word. Great pains should be taken to secure brevity and accuracy in language, and in methods and results.

Written Arithmetic.—The principles involved in this study are of necessity the same as those in Mental Arithmetic. The two studies should be combined in all the higher grades, and pupils should not be permitted to solve the questions under any rule in Written Arithmetic until they shall be able to give a correct analysis of similar questions from a Mental Arithmetic. After the examples assigned for each day have been performed on slates, the teacher should, on the blackboard, give a solution of one of the examples, offering a clear and thorough explanation; after which, each pupil should solve a question at the blackboard, endeavoring to give an explanation as thorough and explicit as the one given by the teacher. This method inspires the pupil with confidence and self-reliance. If principles, and not rules, be taught, teachers will experience no difficulty in making some good arithmeticians.

DEFINITIONS.

In the lowest grades the teachers should explain the meaning of words found in the lessons by talking about them familiarly and showing how they could be used in short sentences and in ordinary conversation; the pupil should not be expected to commit to memory, but to understand the meaning and the use of words.

In divisions a little higher it is very important to direct the attention of the pupil to the meaning of words with which he is not already familiar. The list of words and their definitions, at the beginning of each reading lesson, should be committed to memory, and the meanings substituted in the passages in which they are found; care must always be taken not to give synonyms, merely, instead of explanations. In the more advanced divisions, every desk should be furnished with a small dictionary, and the pupil taught how to use it, and encouraged to turn to it always when he sees a word whose meaning he does not understand.

GEOGRAPHY.

There can be no effectual study of Geography without the use of globes. It is true, by close observation and hard labor, a correct and extensive knowledge of localities, &c., may be obtained, but by the aid of globes and large maps, the same knowledge may be gained with less labor, in less time, and with much more pleasure to the pupil.

Effort should be made to render the study pleasant; the pupil's interest and attention should be excited by oral instruction in whatever may be of an interesting character connected with the places mentioned, as the existence of natural curiosities, the association of memorable events, &c.

Matters contained in statistical tables should be regarded more as subjects for reference than memory.

The lessons upon climate, productions, manufactures, exports, inhabitants, forms of government, should be short, simple, and comprehensive, as the object should be to avoid the usual repetition of the same fact.

Map drawing upon the blackboard, &c., so as to obtain correct ideas of the forms of states, location of mountains, rivers, &c., should be co-ordinate exercise.

No. 10.

GRAMMAR.

When the study of this very important branch is commenced, the greatest stress should be laid upon oral instruction, and little attention given to formal definitions, except so far as may be necessary to an understanding of the subject under consideration.

In the lower divisions, blackboard exercises are almost indispensable to show the characteristics of different parts of speech, which, as soon as learned, should be applied in the formation of simple sentences; these sentences should, in turn, be analyzed, the words classified, their attributes explained, their changes shown, and the rules of syntax applied. In this way the subject may be rendered interesting, certainly practical, and not a dry study involving nothing but the memorizing of definitions and rules, without any apparent application.

Great attention should be given to the language used in the school-room; and pupils should be encouraged to correct every ungrammatical expression; no violation of the rules of etymology or syntax should be permitted to pass unnoticed in any remark or exercise. Every exercise and every recitation should be so conducted as to accustom pupils to correct modes of expression; all questions should be clear and concise; and every answer should embrace so much of the question as is necessary to make a complete sentence or proposition.

The habits formed in early life determine the style of later years—"The child is father of the man." Much depends upon a knowledge of the principles of syntax, but more upon the example set and encouraged by the teacher and those with whom the pupils associate.

PARSING.—This subject is so closely allied to grammar that it cannot be considered apart from that branch; it is impossible to regard the province of the one as being distinct from the other. The formation of sentences from words, and the analysis of sentences already formed, assist in determining the connection of each word with the others, by showing the dependence and relation of each towards the remainder of the sentence. The extract to be parsed should be read carefully, and its meaning explained, that the pupils may grasp the ideas expressed. In the reading and other lessons, the connection of words may be noticed.

ORAL INSTRUCTION.

To each grade some topics are assigned for which no text-books are provided. These topics constitute what has been called the "Oral Course." This course is not designed to be exhaustive, but rather to furnish a little recreation from the ordinary routine of book study, at the same time that it gives a simple outline of matters important to be known by all pupils, especially by such as will be unable to go further than the outline. Properly understood and pursued, it will prove of great value, both by reason of the actual knowledge gained, but more especially of the desire awakened for farther and more exhaustive study. The habits of observation which it demands, and the interest which it engenders, are of incalculable value to the student. The incidental advantage of leaving pupils to the expression of their own thoughts and ideas is by no means to be disregarded. These benefits are proportioned to the general intelligence and tact of the teacher, and the reflex influence of the "Oral Course" upon the faithful teacher will appear in increased teaching power. New sources of illustration are opened, and the ability to employ them is largely augmented.

Nearly every recitation furnishes occasion for more or less incidental instruction; but the teacher who embraces every opportunity to switch off upon side issues may be sure that his time will be largely wasted. The thoughtful instructor will find some occasions that he will not dare neglect.

Very many of the topics in the Oral Course can be treated most successfully as Object Lessons. The presence of the object gives life to the study. But mere gossip about the object is of no avail. There must be systematic study. First. What do our senses tell us of the object presented as to color, form, taste, smell, etc. Second. What can we recall of the object when no longer seen, heard, tasted, smelled, or felt. Third. What are its points of resemblance or of contrast when compared with other objects with which we are familiar. Fourth. To which of the three kingdoms of nature does it belong, and what is its general classification. Fifth. What are we to infer as to its uses and practical value. The present knowledge of the child will determine how much time should be spent upon each of the above divisions, but their order may not safely be changed, nor should the attention of the child be diverted from any characteristic until some definite knowledge is gained.

Teachers should make thorough preparation for these exercises, and be sure that their instructions are simple, concise, and accurate. They should never tell a child what he may be made to tell them, and should never give any information without calling for it again.

No. 12.

HISTORY.

In this branch of study, care should be taken that the memory of the pupil be not burdened with trifling and unimportant facts. Let the teacher seize upon the leading points and impress them upon the pupil's attention. The most prominent incidents only should be associated with dates. In regard to others, it matters but little whether the exact date be remembered.

No. 13.

MUSIC.

It is recommended, under the limtitation which shall be fixed by the Superintendent of Music, that the rudiments of the Theory of Music be taught in the Primary Department from charts or blackboards, by the regular teachers therein, an acquisition as easy to the child as learning the alphabet; also, that a few of the simplest songs be designated by the Superintendent for the opening and closing exercises of the school.

It is also recommended that the Theory of Music be taught (under the direction and supervision of the Superintendent) in the remaining departments by the regular teachers of the same, from a suitable manual to be provided for the purpose, and that a review of the study of the same be made by the respective music teachers, and also, that all the practical music in these departments be taught by the music teachers.

If any of the regular teachers feel that they are not qualified to comply with this direction, they will be taught free of charge by the Superintendent of Music.

Music is now regularly incorporated in the course, and it should be the earnest desire of every faithful and progressive teacher, and the direct effort of all that have the best interests of popular education at heart, to engraft it upon the system of education so thoroughly that it may form an inseparable part of it, on account of its direct appeal to the heart, and its direct tendency is to elevate and refine.

No. 14.

PHYSICAL EXERCISES.

Means should be provided in each school-room for constant ventilation, and when not provided, the windows and doors should be lowered and opened for a few moments several times during each session.

The above injunction is imperative, and teachers should not permit themselves to be guided in this respect by their own feelings.

Each school-room should be provided with a thermometer, which should never be allowed to be lower than sixty degrees Fah., or higher than seventy-five—sixty-eight to seventy being the temperature desired.

A recess of fifteen minutes shall be given once during each session, or fully that length of time should be devoted to Physical Exercises, the windows being lowered.

In all the divisions particular attention should be given to the manner of sitting and standing, especially during recitations and reading exercises, and all teachers should earnestly persevere in their efforts to prevent the formation of bad habits in these respects, and in correcting those which are already formed.

No. 15.

MORALS AND MANNERS.

Love to parents and others, gentleness, kindness, obedience, honesty, truthfulness, politeness, neatness, diligence, etc., are to be cultivated in children, not so much by direct exhortation and formal precept, as by such expedients as shall call these affections and qualities into active existence. Lead a child to do a kind act, and you will increase his kindness of heart; and this is the best of all lessons on kindness.

Anecdotes and familiar examples from personal experience, or from reading lessons, illustrating love of brothers and sisters, respect to age, kindness to animals, regard for authority, obedience, etc., are among the best means of cultivating these virtues. Teaching mainly by examples will accomplish more than any amount of mere formal moral instruction.

Teachers should improve every opportunity to inculcate lessons of civility and courtesy. In the lower grades, especially, they should give frequent and minute directions respecting the ordinary rules of politeness. The pupils should be taught that when a question is asked them, it shows a lack of good breeding to shake the head or to remain silent in their seats; even if they are not able to answer it, they should rise, and remain standing until it is passed to another. They should receive some general directions respecting the manners of young persons in the presence of those who are older. They should be taught that well-bred people do not laugh at mistakes, etc. Their manners in their intercourse with each other should receive the attention of the teacher.

The position of the pupil in his seat, his movements in passing to and from the class, his posture in class or at his seat when called upon to recite, should receive the teacher's most careful scrutiny. All listless and lounging habits in the school-room indicate a careless spirit, which should be checked. The teacher should insist upon a posture, at all times, that expresses the respect which a pupil should feel for himself and his class-mates, as well as for his teacher.

X.

Duties of Committee on Supplies.

I. They shall annually, in the month of October, cause to be inserted in five of the daily papers of this City, an advertisement asking proposals for furnishing all necessary books and stationery, by sample, for the ensuing year. And the said advertisement shall contain notice, that any article furnished this Board, not in accordance with the sample, will be rejected. One month prior to making such advertisement for proposals for the supply of pens, pen-holders, ink, ink wells, and stands, slates (other than silicate), slate and soapstone pencils, lead pencils, rubbers, chalk, paper, and plain copy books, they shall select suitable samples of the said articles of stationery, which samples shall be exhibited, at the office of the Board, to intending bidders, and the advertisement herein directed to be made shall invite proposals for furnishing the said articles in accordance with such samples.

*Each member of the Board shall be sworn or affirmed, "that he will discharge his duties, as a member of the Board of Public Education of the First School District of Pennsylvania, with fidelity, to the best of his ability."

II. Said proposals shall be directed to, and opened by, the President, in the presence of the Board, at the Stated Meeting in December; and the contracts therefor shall be awarded to the lowest bidders. Provided, however, That no contract shall be awarded to the publishers of the books or manufacturers of the stationery (excepting herefrom the manufacturers of such articles of stationery as are specified in the next preceding section), for the supply of which proposals have been invited as aforesaid, unless such proposals be accompanied by the affidavit of the bidder, made before the Mayor of any City or a Judge of any Court of Record, to the fact that the price at which the books or stationery are proposed to be supplied is not greater than that charged buyers of like quantities on a credit of sixty days. And provided further, That this section shall not be construed to require the Board to reject a bid unaccompanied by an affidavit.

III. All persons sending proposals to furnish the schools of this District with supplies of any kind, at a given price, shall accompany the same with a bond, executed by at least two persons, in such amount as may be deemed sufficient by the Committee on Supplies of this Board, conditioned for the faithful performance of any contract which shall be awarded to them pursuant to said proposals; and said bond shall accompany and be filed with the contract so awarded.

IV. They shall, annually, in the month of May, cause to be inserted in five of the daily papers of this city, an advertisement asking proposals for the furnishing of the necessary fuel. And such advertisement shall contain the following condition, which shall be inserted in every contract for the delivery of the coal, viz.: "Each ton of said coal shall be weighed at the place of delivery, in the presence of a proper person to be deputed by each Sectional Board, as weigher (subject to the approval of the Committee on Supplies), who shall keep an accurate account of each load of coal delivered, its exact weight as ascertained by correct scales. And no bill shall be approved for such coal unless an affidavit of the weigher shall accompany such bill, setting forth by what contractor the coal was delivered, the date of delivery of each load, the number of tons and the quality of coal delivered, and whether weighed at place of delivery." Printed forms of said affidavit to be furnished by the Committee on Supplies. The Committee on Supplies shall appoint a weigher, in case of neglect of Sectional Board.

V. VII. It shall be the duty of the Committee at the commencement of each year, to apportion to each Section their proportion of the appropriation for books and stationery for the current year, the said apportionment to be based upon the number of pupils in the respective Sections. No Section shall be permitted to receive supplies beyond the amount so apportioned.

XI.

Duties of the Committee on Text-Books.

I. It shall be the duty of the Committee on Text-Books to consider applications, when referred to them by the Board, to introduce any new text-book or publication, or any revised or amended edition of one already in use. And the said Committee shall examine the same thoroughly, and shall make a written report to the Board, setting forth the reasons for or against the introduction of the same. Provided, That in no case shall the Committee make a report upon any book or publication, unless each member of the Board shall have been furnished with a copy thereof (accompanied with a statement of the price at which the book will be supplied to the Board), for examination, at least two months previous to the time herein fixed for making said report. They shall also report to the Board books or other publications not proper to be retained.

II. The Board of Public Education shall in no case direct the introduction of any such book or publication until the next stated meeting after the presentation of the report. And no such book or publication shall be furnished for the use of the schools for at least one year after its adoption.

III. The Committee shall not allow any book or other publication to be introduced into or used in any school of the district unless the same shall have been first approved by this Board; nor shall any new or revised edition of any book in use be introduced without the like approval.

IV. No book upon any subject now or hereafter taught in the schools shall be introduced except to take the place of some other book on the same subject, and already introduced, and which new book shall exclude that for which it was substituted.

XII.

Duties of the Committee on Property.

I. They shall have the supervision of the erection of all school-houses, and also of all repairs, improvements, and alterations exceeding the sum of $150.

II. They shall, before commencing operation upon any contract for the erection of new school-houses or alterations, or additions to those in the occupancy of the Board, require the contractor to give good and sufficient security for the faithful performance of his contract, to be approved by them. The Committee may waive security in cases where the contract does not exceed five hundred dollars.

III. When a new school is to be opened, or the location of a school changed, the Committee on Property shall first approve of the rent required for the same.

IV. They shall, from time to time, inspect the real estate under control of the Board, and report the condition of the same; they shall have all buildings and other property insured in such amount as they may deem necessary.

V. They shall make reports of their proceedings at every Stated Meeting of the Board.
